Swimming, playing, sun exposure, and water activities

Drowning Prevention and Marine Accidents

Protecting Children and the Most Vulnerable Groups

Reducing Injuries

Slipping and Sharp Objects

Preventing Exhaustion

Heat and Sun

Responsible Behavior

in Public Facilities

Remember: Enjoying the beach starts with following safety instructions

Key Risks at Beaches

Swimming in non-designated areas and ignoring instructions

Swimming in non-designated areas

Children without supervision

Straying far from shore

Ignoring warning flags

Swimming in bad weather

Prolonged sun exposure

Slipping on rocks

Glass and sharp objects

Message: Knowing the risks helps avoid them before an accident occurs

Swimming in Designated Areas

Choose the right area and follow the instructions

In designated areas only

Follow the lifeguards' instructions

Don't swim alone

Don't stray far from shore

No strong waves

Don't swim when tired

No prohibited areas

Remember: The presence of a lifeguard or designated area doesn't replace personal attention

Supervising Children at the Beach

Direct and continuous supervision

Watch them at all times

An adult with each child

Flotation doesn't replace supervision

Within sight

Teach them not to enter without permission

A clear meeting point

No phone distraction

Important Message: Effective supervision means continuous attention, not just presence

Warning Flags and Guidance Signs

They help you understand the sea conditions

Read the signs before entering

Comply with warning flags

Don't enter when prohibited

Ask the lifeguard when in doubt

Don't ignore the warnings

Watch for changing weather

Remember: Warning flags are placed to protect you, not just markers
